BERLIN DENIES OBSTRUCTION

(Reuter's Service.)

Berlin, December 20. The statement of Marquess Curzon, in the House of Lords, with regard to the evacuation of Cologne has caused consternation in Government circles here. Official Statement.

An official of the Foreign Office declares that the prolongation of the occupation without consulting the German Government, will be regarded as a flagrant breach of the Treaty of Versailles It will seriously affect the internal political situation and greatly increase the ranks of the Germans who claim that the policy of fulfilment of conciliation towards the Allies has not paid Hot Denials.

Official circles hotly deny; the allegation of German obstruction to the allied military mission.

Unfortunately, however, this increase was by no means indicative of any sign of improvement in the shipping trade, such increase being, in a great measure, due to the depreciation of ... the yen exchange, and the temporary inflation of passenger traffic for the Pacific Coast of America, pending the operation of the new immigration law of the United States. The actual condition of the continued shipping depression might be gauged description of Banking & Erchange by the fact that, in spite of the increase of net profit, the tonnage of cargo and the number of passengers actually handled during the term were both about ten per cent. below the figures of the previous term. In order to enable the Directors to recommend a dividend of ten per cent., the President said, they had to propose a further incursion on the dividend equalisation fund to the extent of Y.1,250,000.

The President, continuing, said F that the intensity of the shipping depression still continued unabated all the world over, and, although some slight sign of re--Tokyo, Yokohama, Koby, Osaka, covery was from time to time noticeable, the situation, on the whole, had not measurably risen inchike, Taiche, Tainen, Takow, from the rock bottom of decline. dress the features becomingly. No arrangement of the hair so adorns a youthful face as curls. Many a very young girl, a beauty in curls, loses al her prettiness when her hair is put up. It must have been very early in the development of civilization that the beauty of curling and wavy hair began to be appreciated. It naturally followed that, women with straight hair tried to imitate what the men so erally admired, and thus came being the fashion of manipulating the tresses with a heated rod of metal or whatever may have been the early equivalent of the modern implement of us to look black. The bob has had no tendency to do away with the fushion of covering the ears with the hair. In which connection it is worth while to recall the fact that this style was originated by Cleo de Merode, a famous stage beauty, who visited the United States nearly twenty years ago. She wore her dark hai sleeked close to her head at the sides, hiding her cars. It was said, perhaps untruly, that her ears were ugly, and that she adopted this mode, of arranging her hair in order to conceal them. Her photographs were widely sold and displayed. and the style, which was highly becoming to Cleo, was quickly imitated by many women. The fact that most ears are not at all pretty may have had much to do with the perpetuation of the

On the other hand, if she be fairly young, she will not make the mistake of doing it up-supposing it to be unbobbed-in an elaborate structure of coils and puffs; for that again will add to her apparent years. Such com plexities of the coiffure are suitable only to women in later life. With the progress of years, from childhood on, there is a gradual darkening of the hair, due to an increasing supply of pigment, and there is no known means by which the process can be arrested. Inasmuch as the colouring matter is the same as that which gives its tint to the complexion, we may consider ourselves fortunate that the skin does not manifest the same tendency, else we might start in life as white folks and find ourselves mulattos by the time we reached forty or fifty

The available supply of human hair from Europe would be reduced to a distressing minimum by augmented demand over there, but there is always plenty to be had from China. Light hair, considered as a fibre, is very different from dark hair. It is much finer, and there is more of it to the square inch of scalp. In Germany, before the war, scientists who made a study of the subject decided that the average brunette had forty-six miles of hair, while the average blonde had ninety miles.

Suppose the bobbing fashion to go out rather suddenly. The question immediately suggests itself, how long will it take for the bobbed heads to grow new crops? It takes only a few minutes to bob a head of hair, but to unbob it is a long and tedious process.

How Fast Does Hair Grow?

An answer is not hard to give. Hair, on the average woman's head. when of short length, grows at a rate of one-fiftieth of an inch a day. That means seven inches in a year. At the end of a twelve-month a damsel repentant of her bob should be able to put up her hair in some sort of fashion. Within two years she would have enough of it to arrange in almost any way that style might dictate.

A young woman, once arrived at adult age, remains technically a girl for about four years. Generations of girls are approximately quadrennial. Thus one may easily imagine the arrival within four years or less, of a generation of girls with long hair, the very possession of which would put the bobbed young women into an elderly Charlemagne, had time to be not only the wisest and best king, the most progressive and far-seeing ruler, one of the great world-conquerors but also one of the most famous of all lovers. In the year 800, on Christmas Day, he was crowned at Rome emperor of all the western world. He had won in battle all of what is now Germany, all of Italy and he owned and ruled all France and much of Spain. In a long war, lasting 33 years, he had beaten the warlike Anglo-Saxons. All of modern Europe bowed beneath his sway and he ruled superlatively well. He found Europe dead and all learning asleep, all art and culture trodden under foot and lost to sight. He resurrected, and put new energy into every phase of life, and built up such a kingdom of learning and wide-awake brilliant ideas as had not been seen since the palmy days of Greece and Rome. Between times he went to his little mative town of Aachen and became a boy again in his blissful freedom and love of nature. It was here he built a nest for her he loved, the exquisite Fastrada, and to make it worthy of her he ransacked the world and its cities for beautiful ornaments and works of art. The treasures of rulned Rome were brought to light that they might adorn this little village. For it he built one of the world's most beautiful chapels, so levely that the town was ever after known as the town of the chapel, in French Aix-la-Chapelle.

German At Heart. To-day Aachen is an important link in the great railroad lines, a centre through which the express trains between France and Germany pass. It is a busy little place and very conscious of its important part in the history of Europe. There were very brief periods when it was held by-France, but it has always been in heart and soul a German town since the day when France and Germany first existed as separate entities. In 1815 it was formally ceded to Prussia and all claim to it by any other government was relinquished. By Germans it is called by its name of Anchen, and by France always Aix-la-Chapelle. #### Tickling Throat.

Did you ever have that nerve-racking experience caused by a bit of mucus or palegm that stubbornly refuses to be dislodged, but tickles and tickles until it sometimes almost strangles? Just a few sips of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, swallowed very slowly and allowed to slide down the throat, will stop that tickle and at once give you immense relif. Try it that way too for hoarsenes, b onchial and other coughs. For sale everywhere.

STAMP LAWS. PROPOSED FURTHER

AMENDMENTS.

An amended draft of the bill to amend further the Stamp Ordin-

Broadly speaking, the present law, enacted in 1921, is that instruments executed on behalf of the minority there. Sixteen Labour Brown) had read the usual notice Government are exempt from stamp duty. The former law, which dates back to 1866, was that ment were exempt from stamp duty, whether the instrument was executed on behalf of the Government or not. Clause 2 of this bill proposes to go back to the old law on this subject. The chief reasons for this proposed change in the law

> (a) In some cases the intention of the transaction is to assist the other part on certain terms and is to secure the performance

In other cases the object is to secure Government servants, etc., and it is presumed that in such cases there is no desire to collect additional revenue by means of stamps. Probably in every case the main object of the instrument is to secure the rights of the Government.

Clause 4 applies the new rule, i c., the old value 'restored, to instrumonts executed before the Liberals have the satisfaction of commencement of the amending knowing that what they miss

2. Section 35 of the Stamp Ordinance, 1921, provides for exempting from stamp duty reassignments and consequential new mortgages executed" for the purpose of obtaining a Crown lease. It is now proposed provide in the same way exempting from stamp duty reassignments and new mortgages executed for the purpose of effects ing an exchange of land with the Crown. It must be remembered must the automobile has become a accided and deciding factor in the models for sports—the latter an exceedingly clastic term, if one becomes at all analytic. The modern woman thinks mothing of jumping into her roadster and driving a score or more of miles for her game of golf, and immediately one sees that what she wears must be correct for the car, as well as for the KIDS.

For general active sports attention centres on the three-piece sports suit That is really nothing more than a knicker | costume with a wrap-around skirt added to it. We have, pictured, a knit suit made up of sweater and knickers-it may be originally a threepiece suit, if one takes into consideration the tam-o-shanter cap-and it quite easily becomes an outfit that is correct for the car, if a skirt is added. This type of apparel is widely varied, as at would be, naturally, because of its convenience and usability. Time was, and not so long ago, that time, when knit garments were passed by with a single sentence, if mentloned at all. Not so, these days, when knitted outerwear claims a whole department to itself in every smart, up-to-date shop. We now have quite everything in knit-wear that we have in other fabrics, and the sweater gives this type of clothes' the advantage when it comes to variety. And because everything we do, just now, is touched with a thought of Christmas, and because everything we see is a potential Christmas gift, we combine the ideas of what we shall buy for ourselves with thoughts of what shall we. buy for someone else! So great was the enthusiasm for Mah Jongg, the sothrough the winter of 1923-4, that many a devoted bridge player forgot the gameentirely, and spent her afternoons and evenings punging and chowing and konging.

A set of real Chinese tiles may, easily enough, solve a Christmas problem, and there are many other items-known as accessories to the game—that one may desire for herself, even passing on helpful hints to a friend concerning Christmas; or, one may include in her list of Christmas possibilities for friends equally desirous. There are specially constructed tables for the game, that take care of the tiles and the "money," and there are table tops, designed to fit over the bridge table, that take the place of the regular Mah Jongg table. Many of the latter are very decorative,... with a real Chinese atmosphere.

If one contemplates a Mah Jongg party, then a trip to an Oriental shop is imperative, for prizes must be in keeping with the game. And what will do for a Mah Jongg prize will make an acceptable Christmas gift. There are infinite possibilities-a bit of pottery; a bronze—if one wishes to be expensive as well as original—an odd incense burner with a package of the Oriental inconse; a tinkling windbell; a strip of embroidery; a necklace! a bizarre bit of jewelry.. One may "kill two birds with one stone," if one likes; and at the same time put in a pleasant and extremely profitable hour in some Eastern shop. For it is certainly true, that eager as we are to be different, and have different favours and prizes for our parties. we go to the usual place and buy the usual thing, when right at our elbow, metaphorically speaking, there are unexplored shops full of unexpected

The Charmof _ighting Accessories

The wise woman shops with a double purpose, these days, when Christmas is but a week away, and when she seeks an article of wearing apparel; an accessory; a bit of house furnishment; she considers it for her own purpose and as a solution of one or more of her Christmas gift problems. The fall of the year is notable for house renovating activities, and more than one woman goes shopping for the needed incidental piece of furniture; the lamp; the chair, that will too familiar room. Too little attention is paid to the lamps and the various lighting fixtures in the average home. and too few realize how much a lamp will do for a room, or how thoroughly it will change the whole atmosphere of possible to-day. Since a lamp is of great importance, and cannot be over looked, its purchase should be a matter of careful choice, and for this choice three rules obtain—be sure of the type; be sure of the colour scheme of its surroundings: and . be sure of its colour both lighted and unlighted. / Size is another factor for consideration, and there can be mistakes made in the shape of the base, the shade, or both. Above all else the lamp should possess inhelp the new hangings make over the dividuality, and the choice should be not one of the many that one sees everywhere, but something that is really rare, not necessarily because of its price, rather in spite of it. A floor lamp with an oval marble base and a hand-wrought standard, the shade following in an artistic way the shape of the base, here is unusuality, as compared with the lamp with maliogany standard and round shade.

The ceiling lights are not enough if a room is to be homelike. Floor, table and bridge lights-correctly and invitingly placed, and by the former is meant a placement so that they cast an illumination where it is most neededlight-these three.

Note the simplicity of the vase lamp with its parchment shade, decorated to match the base. It is distinctive with no hint of the elaborate. For an Italian room or hall-way the choice might be a wrought iron standard bearing a lantern of coloured glass; there are three branch floor candelabra of seventeenth century workmanshin: flickering shadows when the lamps are in pairs. There are wrought iron bridge lambs, some of them old from candle sticks wired for electricity; and all sorts of delightful variations from the usual thing. There is no more welcome, practical, beautiful and artistic gift for a friend-or for the homethan just the right lamp, but if just the right lamp cannot be found, it were better to give gold coins with one's Christmas greetings.

THE UNUSUAL GIFT INDS A WELCOME

Every Christmas gift list includes a name or two against which it becomes increasingly difficult each year to set all cool yellows and blues over run with down some worthy or satisfactory article. It may be that the recipient is very decided in her tastes; has everything her heart could desire-and more; or is, notably, hard to please. For her it must be something she has not and something unusual, if there is to be a feeling of satisfaction and pleasure in the giving. It is poetically true that "the will and not the gift makes the giver," it is equally true that "giving" requires good sense," no less a person than Ovid our authority. And there is an element of tragedy in the unwanted and useless gift that not even the goodwill of the giver can wholly take away. . .

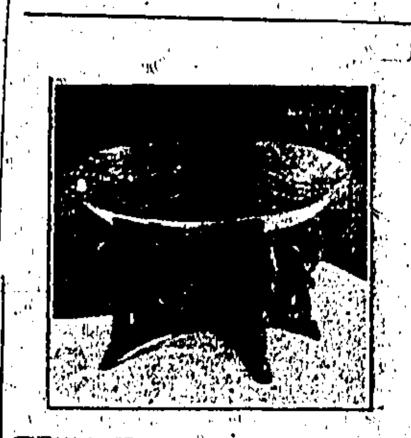

Finding the unusual gift is not so simple, but when it is found, one is fully repaid. It is hidden, perhaps, in an art shop; in the special sections of the shop that specialize in glass and fine. china; in an out-of-the-way gift shop that is so small that it has to depend on its originality for its success. But it exists-this gift unusual, if you will but be patient. In a very general way we make suggestions - a telephone directory cover of tapestry, in blue, red and gold, to cover the ugliness of the book itself; a long, low, flower container -oblong in shape, for the window sill; a wall basket in rich" colourings for growing ferna. And for the invalid who gets pleasure from the ordinary incidents of routine life, there is a most amusing egg container of Spanish majolica, shaped like a flat dish with a depression in the centre. A set of these could be given the housewife, matched by an oil bottle and a bowl with four black handles.

And odd cigarette box of black glass. has a trim of white gold, which gives the effect of silver; brass book ends take on the guise of a full-rigged sailing vessel-appropriate for the man who loves adventure stories; a Chinese tea-pot for the lover of tea, with a package of real Chinese tea in a gay, red Chinese package, would make a fragrant and unusual Christmas gift: and not every boudeir table holds accessories as charming as the trifles of scent-bottle and powder-box of Venetian glass in blue and rose, with nose-gayed tops and stoppers. And the gay debutante or the young matron would rejoice, no matter how full her costume lewelry casket might be, in an etched pendant or placque of onyx, crystal or tonex.

For the heavy-headed flowers that come at certain times of the year there are never enough jars and jardinieressuch a gift will go into instant use for Christmas blossoms, especially if it be a piece of Detrus pottery, which comes hats and fans In a generous range of colourings-dul yellow; powdery gray; soft mauve; gentian blue; spruce or bayberry green selected appearently for their sureness of harmony with many different flowers.

empty space on a console table of cabinet why not an old pharmacy jarimages of luscious fruits-pears, pomegranites, peachesell and grapes? It might, later, be made into a lamp base.

If the home of the recipient is furnished in some particular manner, there are interesting possibilities, since shops that specialize in furnishment can help with advice in the choice of a piece of pottery or some other accessory. Modern Spanish pottery, copies of old Talavera designs; French and Italian peasant pottery; Majolica ware, from the little hill town of Deruta, Italy; black Capri ware; Wilton pottery, made in Stoke-on-Trent, England, the patterns reproductions of old Chinese designs of the Kang Hsi period, all these and many more await your choice to give the needed touch of personality to a friend's library or living room. There are unusual gifts in abundanceseek them out.

The guest of the author's name was so keenly pursued that the secret "was not" kept for long Yet as late as 1856 the novels were attributed to Thomas Scott whose claim was championed by W. J. Fitzpatrick, an Irish biographer, in two pamphlets which were supported by a Lancashire antiquarian.

Tennyson's first poems were published anonymously, in 1827 as 'Poems by Two Brothers.' He returned to this practice when 'In Memoriam'' came out 23 years' later. 'His friend, Edward Fitzgerald, also disclaimed his own name in publishing his first work, "Euphranor, a Dialogue on Youth" (1851). Some years later he sent his "Omar Khayyam" to "Frazer's Magazine," whose office it lay for a year Fitzgerald then took it from the publisher and had it printed at his own expense by Bernard Quaritch (February 15, 1859) Quaritch tried to sell it at 2/6, and then at 1/. THE AGE OF THE STORY.

Morris was the great age of the story, as Edgar Allan Poe somewhere says that we miss the biggest signs over the front of the shops." For the term story includes both the novel and the romance. The eighteenth century had the novel, but it had the romance only during its latter half. The two preceding centuries had the Arcadia and its following, and also a broken line of poetic stories, some of great power and beauty, from Hero and Leander to Theodore and Honoria but the novel was nascent. Compared with the age of Scott, the ampler mass and range of the novel in the later period, after 1850, may be thought to weight the scale. And it is not only the age of the story, but the story its best product unless the lyric be a rival; for the line of lyric from Tennyson to the present Laureate compares with the line from Spenser to Henry Vaughan. From fifteen to fifteen hundred dollars a week in ten years! From! an amateur player at fifteen to a famous motion picture star at twenty-five years of age! Such is the story of Jane Novak. The heroine of this feminine Horatio Alger tale has made her way up the "ladder of success" only after ten long years of unceasingly hard work.

Born in St. Louis of Bohemian parentage, and educated at the Notre Dame convent, Miss Novak began her career at the tender age of fifteen in an uncle's small suburban stock company. She was paid fifteen dollars a week.

At the age of seventeen, evidencing "unusual foresight, and. courage, she decided to emigrate to sunny California against the advice of family and friends, to 'do or die" in the movies. She began at the very bottom of the ladder, and by dint of sincere application and study, "struggled upward," again, as the late

Notable among these were her rôles in Selig's "Kazan," George Davis's "Isobel," the Marshall Neilan production, "The River's End," and three Chester Bennett directed offerings, "Belle of Alaska," "Colleen of the Pines," and "Snowshoe Trail." •A roster of productions in her repertoire include Clune's "Eyes of the World," "The Tiger Man" and "Selfish Yates," with William S. Hart; Thomas H. Ince's "String | 5 Beans," "A Nine o'Clock Town" and "Wagon Tracks"; Haworth's "Temple of Dusk," "His Debt,"

a Robertson-Cole production, Famous Players' "Behind the Door," Goldwyn's "Great Accident" and "Roads of Destiny," the Pioneer production, "The Barbarian"; the Hodkinson produc-"The Other Womar" and Selig-Rork production, "The Rosary."

Collins gave a display of careful batting. He was at the creases 235 minutes, and hit nine fours. On returning to the pavilion he was afforded a great ovation. Ponsford's wicket fell at 275. He played a sound innings scoring all round the wicket. He took 228 minutes to score his 110 mns. His score included eight fours. He has added his name to the distinguished list of those who scored a century in their first test match.

The ground fielding, notably that of Chapman and Gilligan was good, but the catching was faulty. Tate was the best of the English owlers.

CORBETT-JACKSON FIGHT

In a recent interview, James T. Corbett is credited with the following accounts of his great bout with Peter Jackson:

I have fought many fights in my day—lived through many whirlwind rounds, but not single one compares with those first 35 against Peter Jackson on May 21, 1891. I had lost all fear of the

With the 60th round over, Billy Delaney:

"Jackson looks all through. I think I'll try the rally in the next round, and I am sure I can knock him."

But Bill advised: "Wait another round or litwo. Then you can't miss. By then he'll be so weak you can push him over."

So I promised to wait, directed.

The rest between the 60th and the 61st rounds was two minutes long. "The absence of referee caused it. Finally he climbed back, the bell sounded-and Peter and I again went to the centre of the ring. But neither of us made any real fighting effort. I felt I could stow away Peter in that round felt I had it on him in speed, in but I had promised Delaney J wouldn't. And so I didn't try.

I don't know if the 61st round really went three full minutes. It seemed remarkably short But as the bell rang, ending the referee, standing in the centre of the ring, shouted loud and

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

A FINE PROGRAMME ON DOUBLE BILL.

Eugene O'Brien in "The Last Door" a Select Picture and "June Madness," Viola Dana's new Metro starring vehicle opened a three days' showing at the Queen's Theatre yesterday... It is a delightful, amusing, rapid-action comedy of a runaway bride who makes dash for liberty at the altar, throwing an entire churchful of wedding guests into confusion. particularly because the bridegroom is supposed to be the catch of the season.

Despite the bridegroom's million dollars or so and Mamma's eagerness, little Clytic—as she is called in the photoplay—goes to the altar under protest. She watches her opportunity. Noting that the officiating minister is about to ulter the fatal words, she darts off like a flash, incidentally getting a black eye as the result of a fall. The whole shouting, crying assemblage is after her, mammas, daughters, ushers and all. Outside the church there passes in a road, ster an orchestra leader known as the Jazz King. Clytic would have ned into his car if he had been a find merchant. However, it happens that he is a Jazz King and a. handsome one, and quite willing to help Clytic elude her determin-

Mamma is still determined upon the son-in-law, and when Clytie returns home after the escapade, she-is-imprisoned in her room and told she will be confined there until she agrees to marry the millionaire. Clytie wouldn't do this for a million dollars. She would not be Clytie, either, if she allowed herself to remain thus imprisoned. Once more Mamma and her host of retainers are obliged to chase the spirited daughter all over the world:
